Your help and support have completely changed my life; I hope one day I can do the same for someone else. I understand how important a college education is, and all I want to do is to give someone else the possibility to change his or her life, the way you have changed mine.

Endowment Management

TCU’s robust and growing endowment helps build and sustain a high margin of academic excellence.

The Texas Christian University endowment provides TCU independence, stability, and a means of achieving and sustaining a high margin of excellence. As TCU attempts to grow even stronger and stand out as a truly great national university, a robust and growing endowment is needed to sustain a competitive advantage and to provide enduring support for critical goals. In short, the endowment goes hand-in-hand with offering a world-class, values-centered academic experience that prepares students to thrive in a changing world. The cumulative effects of the endowment’s growth over the decades, plus new endowment gifts from alumni and friends, have had a significant impact upon academic excellence at TCU. For example, the University’s U.S. News & World Report ranking has placed it among the nation’s top 100 universities for the past seven years.

At TCU, the endowment refers to the long-term investment assets of the University. These assets are invested in perpetuity. Funds enter the endowment from two primary sources: gifts from donors and additions to long-term savings that are set aside each year by the Board of Trustees. Over the years, generous donors have contributed to the endowment, creating endowed funds that support scholarships, faculty positions and other top priorities. In Fiscal Year 2017, endowment income provided 11.6 percent of the University’s budgeted operating expenses.

As of December 31, 2016, the endowment totaled $1.48 billion and ranked 66th in the nation in terms of asset value by the National Association of College and University Business Officers’ most recent annual survey. While this signifies that TCU has encouraging momentum behind the endowment, the numbers also reflect that TCU needs to build the endowment further if it is to expand its scope of operations and enhance its national reputation.
Professional Stewardship

Endowed funds at TCU are invested by the University’s Chief Investment Officer with oversight by the Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. The CIO is responsible for working closely with the Investment Committee to develop and adhere to an Investment Policy that governs decisions intended to maximize returns within appropriate levels of risk.

The Investment Committee and the TCU administration seek to fulfill two endowment objectives: (1) to provide annual budgetary support and (2) to preserve the long-term value of the endowment for future generations. The endowment is invested using a broad array of investment strategies designed to balance annual payout needs with the desire for long-term growth. The diversified portfolio of assets includes global equities, marketable alternatives, private equity, venture capital, fixed income, real estate and minerals.

Endowed Funds

Each new endowed fund purchases shares in TCU’s endowed investment pool, which operates in a manner similar to a mutual fund. Endowed funds are named and used according to the donor’s wishes. Any annual spendable income from an endowed fund is restricted and can only be expended for the fund’s specified purpose.

Spending Policy

For Fiscal Year 2018, the spending rate is 5.0 percent, within the range considered the optimum sustainable payout rate to secure long-term value. The spending rate is applied to the average of a series of 12 quarterly market values to derive a fund’s payout for one fiscal year. Each year, the Board of Trustees sets the endowment’s spending rate at a level that provides a reliable source of income while maintaining the endowment’s long-term purchasing power.

Establishing an Endowed Fund

With each investment in the endowment, donors guarantee that many of TCU’s greatest achievements lie in the future. The amount required to establish an endowed fund varies, depending on the fund’s purpose — the income on the investment must be sufficient to achieve the donor’s goals and the University’s priorities. Endowed scholarships, for instance, can be created with gifts ranging from $50,000 to $1 million or more. The cost to fully endow a student’s tuition today is $893,400. Endowed faculty positions can be established with gifts of $500,000 to $10 million or more. Some donors choose to contribute over time, building toward the level at which their fund will be endowed.

Research informs my teaching on a daily basis. As the Abell-Hanger Professor in Gerontological Nursing, I don’t have to choose between teaching and scholarship. This endowed fund allows me to pursue cutting-edge research in a university setting where bright, motivated undergraduate and graduate students can learn from the experience of working in the lab as well as from the discoveries we make in the process of research.

Dr. Dennis Cheek
Abell-Hanger Professor in Gerontological Nursing
Endowed Scholarships Transform Lives

Your gift for an endowed scholarship changes students’ lives — now and in the future. With your gift, you also extend your influence far beyond the individual recipients of your scholarship. By targeting programs and causes you believe in, you encourage outstanding individuals to enter those fields. You enable TCU graduates to fill critical shortages in specialized areas. Your gift makes it possible for students to graduate with less debt or without any debt at all. As a result, they will have more flexibility to pursue graduate school or the careers of their choice.

I’ll never forget the day I received my scholarship. My single mom made it clear to me that we couldn’t afford the tuition, so I had given up on my dream of attending TCU and was set to attend a local state school in the fall. However, with the news of this scholarship, I accepted admission immediately, and now attend TCU as a freshman. From the bottom of my heart, thank you. You have changed my life by allowing me the opportunity to receive an education. I hope one day I will allow others to receive the same gift.

Building TCU’s Intellectual Capital Through Endowed Positions

Endowed faculty positions are among the most prestigious and valuable investments a donor can make. Endowed positions, such as chairs, professorships and fellowships, bolster the long-term status and standing of the University. They protect TCU’s intellectual capital — its faculty — from being recruited by other universities while they enable TCU to recruit top scholars. Endowed positions also ensure a dynamic and thriving academy in which faculty research invigorates the classroom and informs the discipline.

"The William L. and Betty F. Adams Chair of Education provides me with the gifts of funding and time. Funding allows travel and research equipment beyond the resources of the college so that I can engage in sharing ideas and activities with faculty and students internationally. Extra time allows me to engage in mentoring and co-researching with undergraduate and graduate students one-on-one through a reduced teaching load. Time also allows for building intellectual communities within my college, across TCU colleges, and among TCU and other universities."

Endowment Support for Programs Accelerates Excellence

School, college, department and program endowments provide resources that accelerate programmatic improvements in teaching, research, creative activity and other endeavors. They also can elevate the school, college, department or program to a level of national prominence.

TCU’s centers and institutes bring together some of the University’s most distinctive programs to address societal needs and provide services and educational programs to both students and the greater community. These are interdisciplinary programs that combine the resources of multiple departments to develop innovative teaching and research, unique co-curricular experiences for students and educational programs of interest to the public.

“... The Suzanne and Kevin G. Levy Endowment for the School of Art enabled me to take part in The Arctic Circle Artist Residency, which provided an opportunity to explore employing technology such as drones. Collaborating with a music professor, an undergraduate student, a graduate student and a fellow art professor, I later crafted my first-ever film from the footage. The challenges encountered through working in a new medium encourage artistic innovation and remind me that students benefit from hurdles and problem-solving when I challenge them in the classroom.”
